One of my favorite events is coming up on January 31, 2026 -

THE 48TH ANNUAL ECA INSTALLATION AND AWARDS DINNER. We just completed doing the video interviews for all of the award winners and this event is going to be very nice. The interviews are being edited as we speak by Alejandro Torres of Sound Ideas and the Award Winners to be honored are:

Affiliate of the Year - Toby's Trucking (Toby Giacomini)

Hermesmeyer Hall of Fame Inductee (Posthumous) is Frank Palagi of Ghilotti Brothers, Inc.

This event is very likely to sell out! We have room for 200 guests and reservations are coming in fast and furious. Please do not wait, reserve a table now (below is the link to reserve your seats/tables or sponsorship) and figure out who to invite later! Otherwise, you will have to go on to a waiting list, and we don't want that to happen!!

Stevenson Supply—Hermesmeyer Award Sponsor

Ghilotti Construction - Hermesmeyer Hall of Fame Sponsor

Ritchie Bros - President's Reception

Western Water - Video Co-Sponsor

Sound Ideas and myself concluded the video interview recordings last week and let me tell you the stories of our award winners will honor them in a very nice way, and inspire you as you learn about Western Water and Josh McGarva, Toby's and Toby Giacomini, Louie Gobbi, and Frank Palagi. Think about the history of these companies and men—a collective 241 years of experience and projects built in Northern California. The names you will hear and the projects these deserved award winners have built are incredible. It is a history of General Engineering projects that you will surely have heard about and will hear more about them on January 31. From Warm Springs Dam to Lakewood Village Estates, from Pt Reyes Dairy and Ag industry to large projects in San Francisco—they are all a part of the history these men and their companies worked on.

The attitude and ethics of these men and their companies will provide a blueprint for all of us to succeed. Their “secret sauce” is common amongst every one of them, and the traits and lessons will be shared with all of you. One of the recurring themes is there is no separation between work, family, and life. So whether you hear about their success in work, their ability to get their co-workers involved as family, or the way their companies support and enrich living for their co-workers, there are inspiring lessons everywhere for us.

Please consider inviting some of your young talent to this event so they can see what makes these exceptional award winners so deserving of being honored on January 31.

Please Join us,

John

1. Santa Rosa settles wrongful termination suit with former planning director

Clare Hartman struggled, especially in the last year of her job as planning director in Santa Rosa, to balance the demands of her high-pressure job and stress at home. Things hit a tipping point in late August 2023 when Hartman suffered a mental health crisis that prompted her to seek medical care. A health official diagnosed her with depression and suggested she enroll in a three-week outpatient program.

Less than a month later Hartman was out of a job, fired in a high-profile dismissal she alleged discriminated against her based on age, gender and disability.

Now, Santa Rosa has agreed to pay Hartman $205,000 to settle the case and avoid a trial, according to a copy of the agreement the city provided to The Press Democrat.

2. Community-Based Transportation Plans Released for Santa Rosa and Rohnert Park

Sonoma County Transportation and Climate Authorities (SCTCA) and staff from the City of Santa Rosa, the City of Rohnert Park, and Sonoma County collaborated over the last year to develop two Community-Based Transportation Plans (CBTPs) for the South Santa Rosa Avenue and Central Rohnert Park areas. The project team worked with community members to identify transportation gaps, barriers, and issues in each area and developed a list of transportation projects and solutions to address them.

The CBTPs provide a list of solutions to support efforts by local agencies to pursue federal, state, regional, and local funds to implement the recommended projects and programs. To compete for funds, a project must be well-defined, included in local plans, and have community and public agency support. SCTCA will monitor and alert city and agency staff to new funding opportunities that could fund CBTP recommendations and will track progress on implementation.

Final CBTPs can be accessed here:

3. New Survey Finds Construction Firms Expect Demand To Shift In 2026, With Data Centers And Power Leading, But Report Greater Economic And Policy Uncertainty

Construction contractors have “dampened” expectations for 2026, aside from surging demand for data centers and power facilities, amid broader worries about the direction of the economy, according to *Dampened Expectations: The 2026 Construction Hiring and Business Outlook* which the Associated General Contractors of America and Sage released today. In addition to lower expectations, contractors report they have been impacted by tariffs, enhanced immigration enforcement, and challenges finding qualified workers.

4. Caterpillar, Nvidia expand AI collaboration for equipment

Caterpillar and Nvidia are expanding their collaboration to develop AI-enhanced products and manufacturing systems. The partnership will use the Nvidia Jetson Thor platform for real-time AI inference on construction, mining and power equipment, enabling AI-driven recommendations and a "digital nervous system" for jobsites.
